Four Take Top Honors in Indiana State “Make It With Wool” Contest
Two Advance to National Competition

Indianapolis (October 12, 2020) – Four Hoosier sewing enthusiasts took first place at the Indiana state “Make It With Wool” competition held virtually this year. The Indiana state contest is sponsored by the Indiana Sheep Association and affiliated with the National Make it With Wool sewing competition.

The competition showcases and promotes the beauty and versatility of wool fabrics, yarns, and fibers and encourages personal creativity in sewing, knitting, crocheting, spinning, weaving, and other needlework arts. All contestants must select, construct, and model their own garment(s) made from more than 60 percent wool content.

The state winners by age division or category were as follows:

Junior Division: Amelia Alford of Indianapolis
Adult Division: Annette Richard of Indianapolis
Wearable Accessories: Kelsey McMullen of Pleasant Lake
Home Décor: Natalie Mauer of Fort Wayne

The junior and adult category winners will represent the state of Indiana at the National Make it With Wool Contest in early 2021. The national contest is sponsored by the American Wool Council, the American Sheep Industry, and American Sheep Industry Women.

The Wearable Accessories and Home Décor categories were new this year. These entries also showcase the versatility of wool fabric or yarn for these categories.
